Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners needs help to recruit 100 + new Election Judges for November election

KANSAS CITY, MO. (September 21, 2017) – The Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners (KCEB) needs to recruit around 100 new Election Judges for the November 7 election. Election workers can earn $180.00 for working election day and attending a training session.

KCEB is currently short on manpower in several key areas across the city, and we need help filling those positions. Election Judges are vital in ensuring the efficiency and fairness of elections in Kansas City. We are currently seeking both Republican and Democrats.

Election workers serve a valuable service to the Kansas City community and the various neighborhoods within the city. Election work is a rewarding experience. Come show your civic pride by becoming an election worker today!

There are specific requirements that each Election Judge must meet, including a passing score on a proficiency test. Visit www.kceb.org/elections/workers to fill out the online application or to learn more about becoming an election worker. For more information or to speak with a supervisor, please contact Deborah Sams at deborah@kceb.org, or Toby Chambers toby@kceb.org, or call us at 816-842-4820.
